

Fiona Stanley Hospital Consumer and Community Advisory Council

The Fiona Stanley Hospital (FSH) Consumer and Community Advisory Council (CCAC) members are representatives of the local community and include local health consumers and community members.

The CCAC provides support and advice to FSH in order to improve the hospital experience for patients, support people and other hospital consumers.

What does the CCAC do?

Advises on the planning, development and delivery of health services.

Advocates for consumers, carers and the community by providing valuable feedback from the community to the hospital.

Promotes and enhances consumer and community participation in the development of strategic health care and service delivery plans.

Facilitates communication and cooperation between FSH, local service providers and the community.

Monitors health-related activities and report on the needs of consumers.

Meetings

The CCAC meets every six weeks.

Count me in!

FSH is committed to partnering with consumers to ensure a patient-centered approach to all service planning, delivery and evaluation.

We need you to be this valuable link to the community and ensure our care is relevant and accessible to our patients. Anyone is welcome to apply.
